FINANCE AND TRADE.

OUR WEEKLY REVIEW of the cotton market inst Monday reported middling In New York at 151c, it advanced on Tuesday to 16c, and on Friday to 16le; in New Orleans it was 15jc, on Saturday it advance i to 15 c, on Tuesday to 15 c; on Wednesday to 15 c; in Liverpool the quotation was 7 11-16d, on Tuesday it advanced to 7 13-16d, on Wednesday to 7 d, on Thursday it fell back to 7 13-164; in Memphis it was 15c, which on Tueson Friday 15jc. The changes during the week were an advance of ic in New York, ic in New Orleans, id in Liverpool, to in Memphis. This statement shows that the week last ended was an rather a nervous feeling among many important one for cotton; everywhere owners of the increasing supplies, prices advanced. Spinners have been and a growing desire to see a compelled by the pertinacity with which | more liberal outlet for their cotton. holders have adhered to their demands, to yield to their views of the market and pay higher prices. The receipts have now reached about their lowest point before the second rise of receipts of the season; the frost is now disappearing, with the thaw the small streams and bayous will swell, and as on other years, there will be an increase of receipts in consequence. The total receipts for the week at the ports the previous week were 94,637 bales, this week they show an advance, being 102,978; the advance will probably continue until the second highest point of the season is reached, then the final period of decline will follow. The inquiry In our market this week has been active; fine grades and long staple river cottons are principally sought, the latter especially. The desire to obtain river cottons manifests itself stronger every year, and will probably lead to larger amounts of low lands being put under catton cultivation, while the uplands will be devoted to serials in a larger proportion than hitherto. Our sales this cotton is relatively dearer in New York week amount to 15,600 bales, the largest than in Liverpool, so that few orders sale of any week in the season; the next largest sales were the two weeks ending a good stock of cotton—28,000 bales December 4th and 18th, on each of The highest sale on any week last year sparingly for some time to come. The was 21,450 bales, on the week ending December 12th. Our stock, it will be nohad 70,000 bales on hand; we have now but 58,000 bales, and that amount is still rapidly falling. Extracts from the annual circular of Ellison & Co. estimate the cotton requirements of Europe in 1875 at 1,265,-000,000 pounds for Great Britain and 908,000 000 pounds for the continent; to- market easier, while holders were more tal, 2,173,000,000 pounds, or 5,617,000 bales of 3864 pounds. This is an increase of only one per cent. over the actual consumption of last year. The nary, 13 c; good ordinary, 13 coldie; low survey of prospects for supply, made by the same firm last year, varied only 15,000 bales from the actual arrivals, and its estimate of supply for 1875 is 2,100 320,000 pounds, of which 1,207,-250,000 are experted from this country, or 2,750,000 bales of 439 pounds. This supply is three-fourths of one per cent. ess than the estimate of requirements, but taking into account surplus stock ield by continental spinners, only onefifth of one per cent., showing that last

"Bearing in mind that prices declined the first two months of ast year, is it then surprising that they have not improved mere so far this year? But for the small receipts at the American ports and decreasing esti-mates of the crop, it seems quite certain we should have had lower instead of higher rates." THE FINANCIAL MARKET during the last week remained just where it was a week before—money plenty with a moderate asking for it at 10 per cent. per annum, with a good amount out to hold cot-ton. Business generally stagnant, m ret-118.000 ly conducted on a conservative cash basis; money seeking shelter in the bank vanits rather than circulating for the ex-pansion of trade. Exchange plentiful at the same rates as reported a week ago; one bank took $110,000 yesterday on New York and the east and north at a discount, selling at † premium; on New Orleans † discount, selling at par. Gold has been lower than during the week before, ranging in New York from 1131 to 1131; yesterday brokers here were giving 1131@1131 for it. Stocks and bonds are as quiet as usual. Shelby county, 69@ 70; selling at 73. Nothing done in city. Phoenix insurance company's stock has sold for 25, and Washington insurance for 25. Memphis gas stock is held at par. Nothing done in Charleston railroad stocks, but understood to be held higher, the company having taken steps to improve its financial condition.

RIVER CHRONICLE.

Meteorological and Aquatic. Old Boreas perched himself upon the ragged edge of the departing February Sunday night, and blew equinoxia blasts to his heart's content. After he had fairly got his work in, Old Pluv. put in his appearance, and the two together ushered in the month of March by wind and wave with all the bluster and confusion characteristic of the seasou-in fact, March came into port with head and tail up, on both wheels, and under full headway. The wind blew a perfect gale and the rain descended in torrents part of Sunday night, but at daybreak Monday morning the clouds sped away before the rising sun, and the first day of March was as bright and beautiful as heart could desire. Reports from the upper rivers continue favorable to a good rise all the way down the Mississippi. Arkansas and White rivers have as yet continued to decline, and while enough water is claimed for boating purposes, the channel in Arkansas is reported pretty bumpy. The river has commenced rising again here. The weather and river tables and dispatches below give further particulars:
